Dear Mac,

I would like to bring to your attention an article that I saw recently in this month's Popular Science Magazine. The article was basically about reducing bank robberies. The New York police have a system of getting witnesses to identify various features of a suspect's face much the same as we do with our kit; however, they don't use the overlay system. It would be interesting to hear your comments on this technique.

We certainly enjoyed our visit with you during the last trip and hope that we do get a couple of people in your course.

Sincerely yours,

Andy
